

First Grade News

Happy Holidays!

G is for Gingerbread

Our holiday spirit continued as we began our second week of gingerbread man fun! The first graders have begun to write their own versions of the gingerbread man story... it's so fun to see how creative they are and how engaged they are in their writing! I can't wait to show you their final products!

To conclude our "G is for Gingerbread" week we made our own gingerbread houses on Friday with our second grade buddies! Thanks to each family for donating the candy and for those parents who were able to join in on the fun! Next week, our focus will be on Family Traditions. The first grade presentations will be the highlight of the week! Please be sure that your child is prepared and ready to go!

Thanks in advance for all your help with this holiday project and please let me know if you

This Week In Math...

This week we wrapped up our math unit on graphing & patterns. The first graders learned a lot and really enjoyed this unit. Next week, we'll move onto Unit 5- all about Place Value and Number Concepts to 100.

Room 11's Holiday Book Exchange!

On Friday December 16th, our class will be having a "Winter Celebration Party" to send us on our way to Winter Break. Our room moms are hard at work planning something extra festive and fun! In addition to this celebration, I always like to incorporate the lesson of "giving" by doing a book exchange between each of the first graders- and what a great classroom tradition to participate in! Would you please look at the attached note for more details?

Let me know if you have any questions! Thanks!

Dates to Remember

December 12th-16th: Holiday Traditions Sharing & Presentations

December 16th: Winter Celebration & Book Exchange! EARLY RELEASE 1:15

Have a super weekend! Mrs.

Ashby

have any questions